Lawyers' Group To Investigate Prison Violence

The American Trial Lawyers Association will conduct an investigation into violence at San Quentin and other prisons, it was announced yesterday by San Francisco attorney Marvin E. Lewis.

Lewis, president of the nationwide organization of lawyers, said a commission is being formed to study conditions at San Quentin where three guards and three convicts died in a bloody breakout try on August 21.

Criminal attorney F. Lee Bailey of Boston will head the commission, Lewis said, and other lawyer members appointments will be announced here today.
